If you want anything in the gents' furnishing goods line-good goods at low prices-go to the "Identical," 38 Main street, Perry & Riley Block. Everybody is wondering why the BAZAAR is selling their goods so cheap. The reason is they must clear out their Spring and Sum-mer goods to make room for the immense stock of Fall and Winter goods which they will soon receive.

The BAZAAR is now giving 12 yards Best American Prints for $1. Also, six yards 4-4 French and American prints for $1. At the corner of Main and Requena streets, oppo-site the U.S. Hotel.

grown very virtuous all at once. It would not steal a cent now from the city if the opportunity offered. But a few months ago it was not above proposing to the HERALD Company to put up a job on the city printing by which the tax-payers would have been swindled out of at least a thousand dollors. It is virtuous now and the attack will probably last until after the ring had decided to keep Mr. TIFFANY election.

Stultifying Itself.

ing the late issues of the Express, in and assuming its correctness, the three which Mr. BEAUDRY and his water- daily papers occupy about this posiworks are roundly rated and denounced, that less than six months ago that paper had eulogized Mr. BEAUDRY, pronounced him a man of "great pluck and enterprise," and after commending him for singly and Company's dummy. The battle is to alone undertaking and successfully be fought with the people, and the carrying out a hazardous and expensive HERALD on one side and the ring, Star public improvement, which brought with it "a stream of gold for the entire border of high lands fringing our city," painting a picture of the wealth, beauty and comfort which must result to thousands of our citizens from the individual efforts of this one man. Yet it is so. On the 28th of May last the Evening Express editorially spoke of they will be able to make SABICHI Mr. BEAUDRY and his water-works as follows:

In the course of an editorial reference to the delightful sites for residences afforded by our fringing hill property, we yesterday said that the one thing needed to render it the most desirable for homes in this city was water, and that Mr. Beaudry's works would secure that desideratum beyond a doubt. While we were writing, our statement was in the act of realization, for at that moment the engine at Mr. Beaudry's pond on Alameda street com-Beaudry's pond on Alameda street commenced to work the huge Hooker pump and the water was flowing in great volume into the reservoir, at an elevation of 240 feet above the level of the pond and at a distance of 3,750 feet from the engine. This is a great triumph and to Mr. Beandry belongs alone the glory. There is not another man in this whole lower country who would have hed the indowitchle. country who would have had the indomital with water under all the trying circumstances.

After repeated failures in other directions, which would have discouraged other men, he still held fast to his great purpose. He tried the artesian process, spending large sums in and the gathering in a dam of the waters of a number of springs. But the process was fedious and the result unsatisfactory. Then he boldly determined upon the plan which has now succeded so annirably. * * Then, at once, was developed the great pluck and enterprise of the man. * * Mr. Beaudry foreshadowed a few of his views on the improvements he would make. He said he would so lay out the streets that they would rather conform to the topography of the country than to the infexible rules of rectifinear lines. With the water power now at his command, he will hydraulic the hills, filling up depressions and making the country as even and the gathering in a dam of the waters of lepressions and making the country as eve is possible. Then he will lay out his streets in accordance with the windings of the hills, observing always such levels as will give both sides of a street as much surface equality possible. Should be carry out his plans—now that he has such an exhaustless support water, there is nothing to prevent him of water, there is nothing to prevent him—we shall look for the elevated to be the most beautiful and picturesque portion of our city in a few years. It will be covered with handsome cottages, and elegant gardens will meet the eye in every direction. The inviting inequalities of the tract will be suggestive of architectural variety and intelligent landscape gardening, and when the entire range has been improved by the thousands who will make their homes upon it, it will form one of the most delightful pictures of home beauty and suburban felicity which this or any other State can present.

We request the citizens of this city to compare the above eulogy and picture with the passionate, vindictive, unjust and often senseless tirades with which the Express is now filling its columns against Mr. BEAUDRY, and decide for themselves which is nearer the truth-which entitled to the greater consideration. What a change has come over the spirit of its dream since May last! Then it thought Mr. BEAU-DRY a valuable citizen-a public benefactor; then it pointed to him with pride and exultation as a man of tireless energy and liberal public spirit. Then it counted the vast wealth that his energy and private means had created for the city. Then it painted a picture rivaling in beauty and magnitude that of CLAUDE MELNOTTE, which it frankly admitted was the creation of Mr. BEAUDRY and his water-works. Then it told how the higher lands, hitherto worthless, had been made the most desirable and therefore the most valuable sites for homes in the city, all through the efforts of Mr. BEAUDRY. Alas, what a change the ring has worked in the estimation and judgment of the Express. At their nod it can see nothing commendable in Mr. BEAUDRY: he is no longer a man of indomitable energy and great public enterprise; that "stream of gold," those "beautiful homes," the millions of taxable property and "the first water which had ever reached that locality save from the clouds," all fade like the baseless fabric of a vision and leave not a wreck behind. How wonderful is the power of the ring over the Express! A gentleman has, without begging aid from the city or citizens. as has been the custom, placed water in a portion of the city which has heretofore been regarded as worthless. This trick might promise success if the people were as ignorant as those schemers affect to believe them. The ring makes another mistake in assuming that they are able to throw the entire California vote for Mr. SABICHI. Mr. SABICHI in the capacity of Councilman has not shown himself the friend of the California population of our city. When a resolution was before the council to discontinue the publication of the city ordinances in Spanish, Mr. Sabichi recorded his vote in favor of the resolution; yet this gentleman is now set up to catch the California vote, on the pretence that he is the special friend of the Spanish speaking portion of our population. Now let us see what may be offered in support of the charge that in case of his election Mr. SABICHI will be more the servant of the Water Company than the Mayor of the people. At a late meeting of ber of a committe, reporting in favor of granting the Water Company the unconditional right to build a flume across and through private the Council Mr. Sabichi was a memproperty from the junction of Main and Alameda streets down to the icehouse. If this privilege had been granted, in accordance with the report of Mr. SABICHT, the company would not have been liable for one cent of damages that would result to private property by the running of this flume through and over it. It is due to Mr. BEAUDRY that certain restrictions and conditions protecting the rights of the people were incorporated in the privilege before it was granted. Again, in the matter of the Fort Hill reservoir, Councilman SABICHI favored the closing of Fort, Sand and Rock streets and of giving the land occupied by those streets, together with lot No. 8, to the use of the Water Company, and this in the face of the fact that the company new hold a thirty-year lease on six and a quarter acres on Fort Hill-a space amply sufficient for the construction of a reservoir larger than the company will ever build there-which is strong presumptive evidence that Mr. Sabicht is more inclined to heed the wishes of the Water Company than to act for the best interests of the people. It is a fact which cannot be denied that the building of a reservoir on Fort Hill will greatly depreciate the value of a large amount of property, as well as endanger the lives of hundreds of citizens; yet Mr. SABICHI is so much the friend of the Water Company and so little the friend of the people that he not only favors the locating of this damaging and dangerous body of water on the hill, but favors the closing of streets and the donation of still more of the city's land to the Water

A "Young Teacher" Speaks.

EDITOR HERALD: Under the caption of "A Citzen's idea of it," I notice that a false impression is liable to be made on the minds of those who were not present at the recent session of the Teachers' Institute. It is intimated that some of the younger members of the Institute attacked the Bible. Such is not the case. One of those who lectured before the Institute, took the position that he who did not keep the Bible on his desk as a continual reminder to him of his great responsibility was unfit for the teacher's office. A majority vote of thanks was tendered the Rev. lecturer for, what was termed, his instructive address. A subsequent attempt was made to rescind this endorsement, by a resolution that the Institute did not endorse that portion of the address which referred to the introduction of the Bible into the public schools.

The introduction of this resolution led to a discussion on the question of the Bible in the schools. The discussion, however, was cut short by an unseemly and open violation of parliamentary etiquette. Another trial was made under a different resolution to undo the previous action of the Institute which was partially successful. But, during the entire debate on this subject not one word was uttered against the Bible per sc. The most violent opponent to its introduction into our schools, spoke of the Book without assailing any of its peculiar teachings. In conclusion I would remind "Citizen" that while the Christian religion is tolerated and its professors are protected by our laws, it has no more right to introduce its code of morals into our free schools, than the Budhists have to introduce the Rig-Verda, the Mahometans the Kora, or the followers of Zorvaster the Zend-Avesta.

Blindfolded and alone I stand, With unknown theresholds on each hand; Yet this one thing I learn to know: Each day more surely as I go, That doors are opened, ways are made; Burdens are lifted or are laid By some great law, unseen and still, Unfathomed purpose to fulfil—
"Not as I will."

Blindfolded and alone I wait; Loss seems too bitter, gain too late; Too heavy burdens in the load And too few helpers on the road; And joy is weak and grief is strong, And years and days so long, so long; Yet this one thing I learn to know Bach day more surety as I go: That I am glad the good and ill By changeless law are ordered still— "Not as I will."

The Death of Sir Philip Sidney.

[From an old English paper.] In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, during the war between the Netherlands and Spain, Sir Philip Sidney was appointed Governor of Flushing. In a Company. This is the public record | fierce engagement under the walls of Tyutphen, Sidney was wounded in the thigh by a musket-ball and was carried out of the thick of of the battle. Faint and thirsty from excess of bleeding, he called for water. This was quickly brought to him, but as he was lifting the mug to his mouth he saw a poor wounded soldier who lay near him casting his eyes longingly at the drink. Sir Philip moved the mug from his own lips without tasting the water and words, "Thy necessity is greater than mine." He lingered after this, in great pain, for several days, and when he was told that he must not expect to live many hours longer, quietly said: "I know it; I know it," and shortly afterward exclaimed, "I would not exchange my joy for the empire of the world." His last words to the sorrowful watchers by his couch were, "Love my memory; cherish my friends, their faith to me may assure you that they are honest; but above all govern your will and your affections by the will of your Creator, in me beholding the end of the world and all its vanities." . He sank back upon the pillow. His less, just where they chanced to fall. "Sir," said the clergyman, after a length for a little while; which caused the beholders to cry out with delight that his understanding should be still perfect and that his weak body should give such a ready token of the joy of his soul. Thus died, in A. D. 1586, at the age of thirty-two, the good Sir Philip Sidney. His body was brought to England and buried in St. Paul's Cathedral. A general mourning was was accounted wrong for any gentle man, for many months after, to appear at Court or in the city in any ight or gaudy aparrel.

It is true, it cannot really party of scientists have gone down grow, for it is perfect, but it does so to our apprehension. The deeper you dig into the Scripture, the more you find it is a great abyss of truth. The beginner learns four or five points of orthodoxy, and says, "I understand the gospel, I have grasped all the Bi-Wait a bit, and when his soul grows and knows more of Christ, he will confess, "Thy commandment is exceeding broad—I have only begun to understand it."—Spurgeon.

Everybody loves and admires true courage. But there is a great deal passes in this world for courage which is really nothing but cowardice. Now, when a boy or a man is "dared" to do a thing, and does it contrary to his judgment and his conscience, he does it simply because he is afraid—afraid either of being laughed at or being looked upon as a goward. And so he really is a coward, because he is afraid to do right. A man who refuses to fight a duel when challenged to do so, disregarding all the sneers or taunts he may possibly have to encounter from wicked men, shows far more bravery than if he had stood up to be shot at. And the boy who refuses to fight or to do

A pious little boy in the west was commanded by his wicked companions to utter an oath, and was told that if he did not they woulk put him under the water and drown him. He manfully refused, and they put him under. After a little while they lifted head obove water and asked if he would not utter the oath. Still he firmly said "No." This was repeated several times until the little fellow actually was drowned. That was a real hero for you. He would not take the name of God in vain. He dared to die, but would not sin. Such was the bravery shown by the noble Christian martyrs in all ages, who dared to sufthe Lord Jesus Christ himself:

fer cruel deaths rather than to offend God. This is the bravery enjoyed by not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear Him which is able to kill both body and soul in hell." Matt. x. 28.

OBITUARY. LITTLE JESSIE'S DEPARTURE.

The morning at length came, after seven days of intense suffering, proceeding from a complication of diseases, any one of which would have been far too much for one so naturally delicate from birth, viz.; scarlet maligna and congestive fever, with a diptheritic inflammation of the epiglottis, rendering de glutition quite impossible. But the morning came which was her last. The doctor felt her pulse, which was faint and few, and the heart throbbed under his fingers, and he knew it was premonitory; but he was anticipated by the mother, who before he spoke, said, "My darling Jessie's going! O, how can I give her up? How can I part with one so dear? But I will say, Thy will and not mine be done.' The parents then felt that they had never loved anything else on earth and never would love anything again, for she was the sunshine of their dwelling. No tears of sorrow could fall upon that little upturned angelic face, now fast changing to marble. The happy spirit of the dear lamb was gone. Angels with noiseless footsteps had been in waiting round the bed and in the room and bore her triumphant spirit to the throne, dressed in the habilaments of glory, "where the inhabitants never say that I am sick." So passed away from the fond embrace of parents, brother and sister and many admiring friends, without a struggle or a groan, our dear little Jessie Hobbs, born March 27, 1865, in Sydney, New South Wales; in her ninth year.

In this morning's issue we enclose the Los Angeles Real Estate Reporter, a periodical published and compiled by Messrs, Chamberlin & Bancroft, real estate brokers. The little sheet contains many interesting and valua-ble items and statistics concerning our favored section, together with a large list of lots, houses and farms for sale. Those looking for homes in our city would do well to read it carefully.

From a San Francisco price-current we extract the following sound advice ts bee-men: Shippers of comb-honey should be careful not to pack in green or unseasoned redwood boxes. A lot which was put up in boxes of this kind at San Diego a short time ago, and which was said to be strictly white when packed, was found upon opening here to have all turned a dark red or yellow color, and it can only be sold at low rates.

"Three Fingered Jack."

We find in an exchange the followng record of "Three-Fingered Jack." the notorious hoodlum who was recently arrested in San Francisco: 36

Shortly after New Year's Day last a quor saloon owned by a man named McNally, in Los Angeles, was broken into and a safe robbed of a large sum of money. Some time after, one Cunuingham was tried, convicted and sentenced to two years in San Quentin | sink away, calling after him the long where he is now confined. A well known character of noted criminal propensities, named Jack Sheppard, but who is known by the historical appelation of "Three-Fingered Jack," has been suspected of implication in the robbery and has been wanting ever since its occurrence. Last night officer P. K. Rogers encountered the festive Jack on the corner of Clay and Kearney streets, and remarked incidentally that he wanted him. Jack glanced at the officer for a moment and then bounded away like a shot up and then bounded away like a shot up Clay street. The officer drew his revolver and fired two shots in the air. The reports of the pistol attracted a crowd numbering some thousands. Detective Jones was walkieg along Clay street, and stepping out into the steet ordered Sheppard to stop. Sheppard stopped immediately, and throwing up his hands said: "All right, Jonsey, don't fire; I ain't heeled." He was conveyed to the City Prison and was conveyed to the City Prison and will soon be transferred to Los An-

The time of the robbery of McNally's saloon was the night of January 10th, and the amount stolen was $875. There was a robbery on the preceding night of a saloon on Los Angeles street, and the parties implicated in both affairs were Cunningham, "Seven-up Joe" and "Three-Fingered Jack." Cunningham and "Seven-up Joe" were arrested and the latter turned States evidence by which Cunningham was convicted and sent to San Quentin. "Three-Fingered Jack" made his escape to San Buenaventura, where he was followed by Officer Harris, arrested and brought back. During his trial for the robbery on Los Angeles street, however, he again effected his company. fected his escape and was not again heard from until his late arrest in San Francisco. There seems now to be no chance for justice to be meted out to the rascal after all as, at this late day there is no evidence available against him. Cunningham being a convict, his evidence cannot be taken in Court and "Seven-up" Joe" who turned States evidence having gone, whither no man knoweth, of course his good services cannot be called into requisition. In consideration of these facts, Sheriff Rowland telegraphed the San Francisco authorities to release their prisoner as no charge could be proven against him here, and a trial would only result in an acquittal, at the same time involving the county in candidates for municipal offices at the coming election. A full attendance is expected.

Good for our Horsemen.

A number of our turfmen and prominent citizens who are fond of turf sports, held a meeting last night and arranged for some races on Monday the 30th instant, the proceeds to be devoted to the public good. The gentlemen present were: Mrs. Jas. Billings, W. J. Welch of San Francisco, Smokers should not lose sight of the fact that Goldsmith, next door to Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, keeps on hand everything in his line of the best quality such as pipes, cigars, to-bacco, snuff, cigarettes, etc. The latest illustrated papers are also kept for the accommodation of patrons.

The Mirror states that a lad employed in a saloon in this city lost his situation because he refused, while on duty, to drink a glass of beer offered him by the proprietor. We venture the assertion that there are scores of suitable for the purpose at about $800. That firm also agreed to attend to the purchase, erection and adjustment of the clock, should it be purchased, free of charge. Should the proceeds from gate-money at the proposed races exceed the amount required, the balance will be donated to the public school library. By decision of the meeting, the following horses will be admitted to the contest: D. Campbell's Los Angeles Maid; T. J. Askin's Rubber Boy; W. Ferguson's Sconchin John; Boy; W. Ferguson's Sconchin John; Mr. Dowey's sorrel mare; Judge Brunson's sorrel herse; Ed. Dupuy's sorrel horse; H. Hellman's r. g. Hector; R. Young's Lugo; O. Macy's br. Dick; J. Young's Young America.

This is certainly a generous proposition on the part of those who have the matter in charge, and we hope it.

An Essay by Miss Jessie Peel, Awarded the Second Prize for Original Composition at the Late Pair.

What can we say of darkness more feathery summit of the climbing than that it is the absence of light? Nothing. Though it forms so large a part in our lives, we can say no more

All, probably, have watched the sun slanting sunbeams first and then the rosy clouds, which "blushed to find themselves so near him." The mystic grey of the twilight follows, until at last "Night lets down her sable curtain and pins it with a star." With the night comes darkness, that silently drapes mountain-peak, plain, ocean and land in black, as if they mourned, the departed day as we mourn our dead. Then mortals say, "How dark it has grown."

Darkness falls not on the eyes of man alone, but upon his intellectual nature. In education we find art and science: in art we can follow the beaten track of others, but science differs from art so much. Art results from science, and in art we understand all things we learn. In science it is not so, bo The musician begins to play, and at first his feeble, trembling fingers make no music in the keys; but the boy progresses and each day brings him new proof of his power, until in after years, when playing the dreamy yet impassioned music of Beethoven or the soulstirring strains of Mozart, he smiles in thinking of his boyish efforts, and it is with a feeling of perfect satisfaction that he rests on the summit of his ambition. He encounters no darkness but learns and understands.

The artist first portrays ungainly figures on his canvas, but as the year roll on his touch approaches perfection and his pencil is the weapon which enables him to stand victorious among his fellow-men. His art is his life and critics in searching for blemishes find new and hidden beauties, and go forth to praise the work of his hands. Though he may have felt discouraged in not progressing fast enough to keep pace with his ambition, there is never a conviction of utter inability to un-derstand such as others contend with -his brothers, the students of science. He may have been disheartened at not He may have been disheartened at not being able to portray the conceptions of wonderful beauty which live in his imagination alone; but no artist is perfect here, because on canvas pictures lose part of that charm which was so evident to him before. Other than this there is no cloud to shadow him; and thus it is with art—knowledge reduced to practice; but not with science.

The astronomer directs his telescope toward the heavens when first he feels his feet touch the path which tends to An attempt was made last night to hold a meeting of the Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, to arrange for an election of a new Board, but a quorum failed to be on hand and the the highest summit of his beloved scithe summit, and instead of looking down on sunlit valleys below, there are loftier summits still so hidden by are growing wearier still. He reaches the summit, and Instead of looking down on sunlit valleys below, there are loftier summits still so hidden by clouds that no conception can be formed of their vast height. There he stands, peering forward, but no way presents itself, for none have passed the limit; and the disappointed heart, embittered and despairing, walls, "Why, why, so dark!—a life spent to find mere darkness!" Not mere darkness, poor worker; for in its efforts the mind grows strong. And standing there, the strained eye can see only enough to feel how great the unknown is. Forward, toward the dim, misty future, eager eyes are turned, striving to pierce its meaning; thus the boy watches his progress until boyhood is past; the man watches his progress until manhood is nearly past, and then the bitter truth bursts on him. He has gone but inches compared with the miles stretching on. It is in this way that the geologist strives to conquer geology, and standing on the threshold of the door that would lead him to the solution of all its mysteries, he dares not enter-it is so dark, so dark. And out of that darkness come sweet strains which only hint at the beauty yet unknown.

Thus, too, with him who treads the path to mental science. He can explain many problems, but there are workings of the mind for which he can give no cause, and between its chambers are passages so dark that they are yet hidden from man.

These and other things have philosophers been searching for for centuries, as the chemist of old did search for that golden-hued idea, the philosopher's stone. Those failed as these will fail, "years yet unspun."

In the beginning man sinned, and sinning, brought down darkness on all the human race following. Before this, light was their lot, for is there reason to suppose that on that golden streets: $ 2501W 123H has 1291U shore which was the abode of our first parents, that darkness ever settled down on man's intellectual or moral being? Nay; but since then he has contended not only with shadow-wrapped science, but also with the darkness of immorality. Morally, man is a darkened being. Naturally sinful, man in overcoming sin, is often defeated; and in the darkness of despair we cry out murmuring, while despair we cry out murmuring, while we forget that we can touch "God's right hand in that darkness" and be lifted into the light. Yet comes the thought, "Is there any peace in ever climbing up the climbing wave?"

Peace comes with the trial for right; and better to climb than to be shut in a trough of the sea, away from the sunlight forever. Man is ever striving, for it is not his nature to lie supinely, yielding to foes, but we are often left without landmark or star to guide us and in the dark we cry, "Is there no light? It is so dark." It is as if over all the efforts put forth by man this seal had been set: "Thus far shalt thou come, and no farther," and often in the midst of darkness, people live and die. The weakest minds are those which say, "It is all light to me, why do you complain?" Is this a case where "ignorance is bliss?" But the grandest characters, and deepest minds are those which see the imperfections in la left for San Francisco on the Senator, having remained about two months among us. Though we are bound, as it were, on earth in all our undertakings, and veiled in by darkness when we would have the light shine brightest, may we not hope that in passing "over the river," this darkness our curse—will roll back in golden clouds, helping to illumine what before it concealed?

"And in the hereafter angels may, Roll the stone from its gate away" We, above the darkness, will then join the grand chorus, rolling to heaven's gates, and echoing almost to the earth, "Light, light, no darkness,

Queen Victoria not Dead-The British Wheat Crop-Billiard Match. NEW YORK, November 13th-There was no truth in the report of the death of Queen Victoria. She is quite

The Daily Bulletin publishes a review of the British wheat crop, based chiefly on estimates of Thomas C. Scott, of London, to show that the erop is up to the average of 30 bushels to the acre; that the prospects of the next crop are very fine; that the ex-tensive clover and turnip failures this year have caused the sowing of an unusually large area in wheat, probably four million acres, and consequently that the future British market for the new crop promises nothing better than the present.

In the billiard tournament to-day, Daly beat Daniels, 300 to 188. Ubacsy won the next game, by 300 to Slosson's 197. Vignaux beat Cyrille Dion 300 to 173. The result makes Vignaux the winner of the tournament and champion of America at the three-ball game. Joseph Dion immediately challenged him for a match for the championship and $1,000. Garnier won the 36th and last game, defeated Joseph Dion, 300 to 233. Garnier wins the second and Joe Dion the third

The Long Shoreman Restive. NEW YORK, November 14th.-The strike of ten thousand long shoreman, against a reduction of wages, seems inevitable. Steamship owners declare that dull business makes a reduction of expenses indispensable to the maintenance of the lines. Both sides appear resolved. It is a known fact that the number of long shoremen is double the requirements of trade.

House Committee Appropriations. WASHINGTON, November 13th.— The House Committee on Appropria-tions met this morning, all the members being in attendance except Parker of Missouri, Marshall of Illinois and Wheeler of New York. The Committee are at present engaged in comparing the appropriations of last year with the estimate for the coming year. It is ascertained that the estimates nearly tally with the legisla-tive appropriations. There is a considerable increase in the estimates of the Director of the Mint. It is expected that within ten days, the legislative bill having been disposed of, the committee will consider the Indian Appropriation bill. They intend to perfect both bills before Congress

The State Grange of California is in session at the Pythian Castle; Judge Hamilton, Master, presiding. The meeting is called for the purpose of investigating the failure of E. E. Morgan's Sons, and to this the Grange has almost exclusively devoted itself. Their affairs will not be disposed of before to-morrow night, when the Grange will probably adjourn. SAN FRANCISCO, November 14th .-Nothing else is thought of to-day but the great race, and hundreds have already started for the grounds, intent upon avoiding the crowd and getting a favorable position for a view of the contest. All the horses are reported in a splendid condition. The report that Joe Daniels was lame is proved untrue, and he will go with the rest. LATER .- The grounds of the Bay District Association were literally alive with people to witness the race, and it seemed as if the city had emptied itself. The horses were called at 1 o'clock, and the fine appearance of Katie Pease gave renewed confidence to her backers, and the odds, always in her favor, were increased. At two o'clock the word was given. Katie Pease won the first heat, making the four miles in 7:43‡; Joe Daniels second, Thad Stevens third. In the second, ond heat, Kate again came out ahead. Time, 7:364; Henry second, Hardwood third, Joe Daniels fourth. The grand prize was distributed as follows: Katie Pease, $13,000; Henry, $5,000; Hardwood, $4,000; Joe Daniels, $3,000.
